Dining Together.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Senator Blaine dined last evening with Secretary Evarts and Secretary Schurz.

The New Cabinet.

Arrangements have been made for a meeting of the new cabinet at the Executive mansion at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, at which time the oath of office will be administered to each member, with the exception of Secretary Sherman, who qualified yesterday.

The New Cabinet Sworn In.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Judges of the Supreme Court to-day paid their respects to the President. The cabinet members who had not already taken the oath of office were sworn in to-day, except Secretary Thompson, who has not arrived in Washington. After the members qualified [illegible] used by the new postmaster general for the benefit of Democrats, and friends conclusively reply that no such thing would be seriously attempted by any honorable man like Key, but that, even if attempted, it would eventually be discovered and prevented by Hayes, for the manifest reason, if there were no others that he has announced as a fundamental policy of his administration that no person holding office shall be disturbed for merely partisan or personal motives. Hayes' friends also reply to some other criticisms on his cabinet appointments by citing Lincoln's appointment of Stanton as Secretary of War while Stanton was still a Democrat, and by referring to Washington's appointment of Hamilton as Secretary of the Treasury, and Jefferson's choice of Gallatin for the same position as instances where foreigners like Schurz, were given places in the Presidential cabinet; the former being a native of the West Indies, and the latter of Switzerland.

Much interest is manifested by Western people as to what will be the Indian policy of the new administration, but the prevalent belief is that there will be no important change from Grant's peace policy, either in general or in detail.

The Supreme Court and the President.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—At 1 o'clock to-day all the members of the U. S. Supreme Court, with the exception of Justice Field, who is in New York, paid their respects, as is customary on the incoming of a new administration, to the President. They were accompanied by D. W. Middleton, their clerk and by other officers of the court. Attorney-General Devins introduced the justices to the President. There were no formal speeches, the visit being merely one of courtesy. Some time was spent in conversation, and it was particularly noticeable that Justice Clifford and the President were on the most agreeable terms. The [illegible]

The Oath which Key Took.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—At the swearing in of the Cabinet this morning there was an amusing scene. All the members except Thompson and Sherman stood up in a row, with uplifted hands, when the Chief Justice began to repeat the oath. When he reached the sentence "You do solemnly swear that you have never voluntarily borne arms against the government of the United States," Secretary Key exclaimed, "Hold on there, I cannot take that oath!" and after a little whispering Key dropped his hand and stepped out of line until after the rest of them had sworn by the iron-clad oath. Then an attempt was made to find a copy of the modified oath to administer to Key, but it was impossible, there never having been any use for it at the White House. The Chief Justice solved the difficulty by repeating an oath to which Key assented.

Schurz Takes Possession.

Schurz assumed his duties this afternoon, after a brief conversation with Secretary Chandler. The latter sent for various heads of bureaus and the principal clerks in the department, and introduced them individually to his successor. Chandler, then addressing himself to Schurz, remarked that when he took charge of the department, he found many abuses, especially in the Indian and patent bureaus, of such nature as to require heroic treatment. This he had applied, using the knife freely and doing some sharp cutting. The result was the abuses complained of had ceased to be, and he took pleasure in saying he was indebted in large measure to the gentlemen who were now around him for aiding him in the work. He commended them all as men in whom his successor could safely confide. He believed he left the department in better condition than he found it. If any wrongs remained, he had no knowledge of [illegible] held to-morrow night. Stanley Matthews, ex-Attorney-General Taft, ex-Gov. Dennison, Sam. Shellabarger and Wm. Lawrence are candidates for the succession.

Garfield Withdraws.

COLUMBUS, March 12.—A telegram was received to-day from James A. Garfield withdrawing his name as a Senatorial candidate.

Nicholls' Legislature.

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.—The Nicholls Legislature adopted the following:

WHEREAS, The inaugural address of the present Executive of the nation indicates a fixed determination to restore harmony to the people of the South by establishing a policy of pacification for one of coercion, and by recognizing the right of said people to local self-government free from Federal interference; therefore, be it

Resolved, We accept this declaration of the National Executive of non-intervention in the affairs of a State as a happy augury for a future, made in good faith and true spirit of the Constitution, and that this general assembly will earnestly co-operate with President Hayes in every effort to restore confidence and the grateful relations among the whole people of this great country, and to this end it pledges all the power and influence at its command to secure the great object for which such governments were instituted, viz.: guarantee of protection to life, liberty and property to every human being within its border.

Indications are that the Nicholls Legislature will not elect a U. S. Senator during the present session.

RETURN TO SPECIE.

PORTLAND, March 1[illegible], 1877.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I notice that you congratulate the country upon the accession of John Sherman to the Treasury Department, and deem his views sound on finance. Will you allow me to suggest where his bill, presented at the last session, if adopted at the next, would fall of accomplishing the result desired? Under existing law the country is pledged to resume specie payment January 1st, 187[illegible]. [illegible] the Sherman bill become a law before next January, and by its provisions but twenty-five millions of gold can be raised by the sale of bonds prior to its proposed day of redemption. The country at that time would have, therefore, in round numbers, about three hundred million of national bank paper (unless the banks called in their [illegible] rapid rate as to stagnate [illegible] further the [illegible] of the country [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] the twenty-five million [illegible] of bonds and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] coin, [illegible] be handed [illegible] which would leave the Treasury [illegible] last dollar [illegible]

The Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 13, 1877.

SOME SUGGESTIONS TO FARMERS.

Oregon is going to produce a vast quantity of wheat this year, the season continuing favorable. With increased area of wheat field and unusually fine opportunities for putting in work to the best advantage, it is safe to predict plethoric granaries and warehouses. That will bring money into the country, which, being distributed in the ordinary course of traffic, will give most of us enough to buy butter and potatoes and such other necessaries as we ordinarily have to send to California for. And this brings us face to face with a conundrum. Why should the people of Oregon ever buy a pound of butter or cheese or a potato, or any other article of table consumption which comes from the farm? There is more money in dairy products when the market is steady and sufficient than in wheat. There is more money in raising potatoes at 40 cents a bushel than in wheat at a dollar. There is more money in carrots at $10 a ton than in wheat at any price that may reasonably be expected. Why not produce at home all the farm products needed for home consumption?

We have heard it seriously asked by persons who, not having personal knowledge in the premises, judged by the fact of our importing butter from California, whether there was not something in the climate of Oregon that made it impossible to put up butter here that would keep for Winter use? To those who have any knowledge on the subject, the question seems absurd; but is it at all remarkable that a stranger going into a country which to all outward appearance was peculiarly adapted to dairy farming, and yet finding butter on the tables of the public houses from another country, should suppose there must be some climatic explanation of the extraordinary fact. Every winter large amounts of California butter are shipped to Portland. No small quantity of this is consumed in the towns up the valley. The same is true with respect to potatoes. These have been supplied this year, if we are not misinformed, from Oregon farms; but it is the [illegible] such has been the case for a number of years. Twelve months ago potatoes were arriving here by every steamer, and selling from a dollar to a dollar and a quarter a bushel at retail. The use of a couple of acres of potatoes would have furnished one of our farmers all the money necessary to meet his family expenses for the year. Of all farm products, wheat is the most reliable for an exclusive crop. The market is steady, and the fluctuations in value smaller, [illegible] variation of quality of the article is much less than in case of any other farm product. But the farmer could spend a part of the period between seed time and harvest in cultivating such crops as need cultivation [illegible] would find at the end of the year the "odd spells" thus [illegible] the most profitable of his year's work. [illegible] the season when dairy work is most productive. Oregon butter ought to be on every Oregon housekeeper's table every day in the year, and as sweet and fresh, certainly, as that which is imported from California. The farmer's table should have it fresh from the churn all winter, and the people of the towns should be supplied from that which is put up in the summer. We do not propose that farmers abandon their grain and cash staple. A few make handsomely out of dairy farming exclusively, but the number of such must be limited. What we suggest is that the regular wheat farming be supplemented with these other [illegible] which could be done without interference with the main business, and which would, one year with another, pay the main family expenses of the farmer, and add to the comforts of his home in a [illegible] way.

[illegible] whose communication appears this morning, takes issue with us on the subject of return to specie payments, and argues that Senator Sherman's bill, should it become a law before next January, will prove entirely inadequate to meet the case. There will [illegible] difference of opinion on the [illegible] for a criterion by which to judge of the grounds on which the efficacy of the measure proposed by Mr. Sherman is questioned, it seems to us the difference is one of fact rather than of conclusion from agreed facts. We do not care to notice the [illegible] writer's statement of the amount of greenbacks that will probably be in circulation on January 1, 1878, further than to remark that the amount now in [illegible] 000 than that which he suggests, and that at the expiration of the present year, if reduction continue at the same rate it has gone on since January, 1875, a further subtraction of $20,000,000 will be necessary to make his figures accurate. But the more important fact he overlooks is that the limit of bonds to be issued in any one year, under Sherman's bill, applies only to exchange of bonds for greenbacks, not the sale of bonds for coin. In other words, there shall be no contraction of currency beyond that amount, even though holders of currency should find it impossible to invest their greenbacks in business so as to secure a return of more than 4 per cent. per annum—the rate of interest on the proposed bonds—but coin may be purchased and put into circulation, in place of greenbacks, to a larger amount. If, as the writer seems to think, there is not a sufficient amount of circulating money now, there is little danger that the proposed $25,000,000 a year, or any other sum, will be retired by the holders exchanging it for 4 per cent. bonds. We have an idea that if Mr. Sherman's bill made the limit, in this clause, five million or five hundred millions, instead of twenty-five millions, the result would be the same, for a country which has not an excess of currency in circulation is not going to find its circulating medium contracted in this way. The really efficacious provision of the bill is that which proposes to replace the paper currency with a metallic currency, or rather, to make the paper currency convertible into coin at the option of the holder. As to the supposed run on the Treasury, it is not to be apprehended, unless we are justified in assuming that the gradual replacing of $[illegible] greenbacks with an equal amount of silver, and the exchange of gold for greenbacks to the amount of, say $50,000,000—as estimated by Secretary Morrill—would have no effect on the value of greenbacks. We are not prepared to accept such an assumption.

A sudden charity for party deserters, Confederate brigadiers, contumacious Democrats, and unrepentant rebels, has been developed in the bosom of Senators at Washington. In twenty-four hours the followers of the Grant regime turned a short corner, came up with a right about, and confirmed the cabinet nominations. The machine men who, a few months ago, thought Schurz was not orthodox enough to take the stump for Hayes, and demanded that he be called off, and who recognized in Key a representative of the Southern banditti and bulldozers, came promptly up to the scratch and confirmed them, together with Evarts and Devens; and lest their followers should fail to change the organ-stops at once and so mar the harmony by grinding out the old theme, telegrams were promptly sent to the said organs, instructing them to say that the appointments were both patriotic and wise, and worthy of the confidence of the country. "Mitchell," it is said, has so telegraphed to Oregon. The order, of course, will be obeyed. Meantime he is cap in hand before the President, expressing prodigious admiration for the new policy!

Here are some "specimen bricks" of the way in which the Standard discusses political questions:

"Bradley, the railroad monopoly attorney, who dishonors a seat on the bench of the Supreme court by Grant's appointment, may soon be buying railroads for himself. A party that could afford to pay so much as half a million to the 'four villains' of the Louisiana returning board to have their candidate counted in, must have come down heavy to the old man on the national board to complete Wells' work. 'Millions for defence man!' was the winning watchword, and they got him. Yet, doubtless, he had to divide largely with his two pals, besides tipping handsomely to some others of the ever infamous eight."

"We do not wish to be understood as saying anything against the Supreme Court of these United States, but cannot refrain from remarking that we should feel somewhat loath to have either Justice Miller, Strong or Bradley pass judgment upon a case in which we were in any way interested."

Comment is unnecessary. But may we not be excused for suggesting whether it is not about time to sober up and talk sense a little while.

It is too bad to be true that Simon Cameron has resigned his Senatorship. No doubt Mr. Cameron is much disgusted at the turn political affairs have taken. No doubt also the policy mapped out by President Hayes has somewhat impaired the usefulness of the venerable Senator, as he has never been accustomed to any such high-toned methods as that policy involves, and is rather aged to begin the work of unlearning old lessons and learning new ones. But it seems a pity, nevertheless, that he should pass from the gaze of an admiring nation. If he has not already taken the step, we trust he may be prevailed upon to reconsider his resolution, and tarry with us yet a little longer.

The Democratic paper of this city gets away with the "fifteenth man," by calling him "Joe Bradley!" We have been inclined hitherto to look upon Mr. Justice Bradley as a very worthy gentleman, but we go down before that sledge hammer argument. Who could face the world in opposition to a charge of so grave a nature? "Joe Bradley!" That ends the matter so far as we are concerned.

We have received from Eugene a letter regarding the case of Rev. J. S. Douglas. We have published an item from the Advocate, making the same point, and we think the matter may as well be allowed to rest.

New Hampshire will elect to-day a Governor, Congressmen, Legislature and county officers. It is one of the closest States in the North.

RESOLUTIONS

ADOPTED BY SPRING VALLEY GRANGE, No. 62, P OF H, MARCH 10, 1877.

WHEREAS, The O. S. N. Co. have undertaken to monopolize the carrying trade of the Willamette river by buying up the boats and locks of the Willamette Locks and Transportation Co., and also the boats and basin of the O. S. S. Co., and taking advantage of the bargain and sale, did run up freights to an exorbitant figure, and left the people no alternative but to pay those exorbitant rates of freight, and

WHEREAS, A number of citizens of Yamhill and adjoining counties formed an incorporated company for the purpose of building a boat or boats for self protection, called the People's Protective Transportation Co., and

WHEREAS, Captain J. W. Cochran & Co. did build a boat with the express understanding that they would be sustained by the farming community. And

WHEREAS, The P. P. T. Co. did build boats and put them on the trade, and reduced freights to a reasonable figure, and

WHEREAS, The O. S. N. Co. reduced freights to a figure that would not pay running expenses, manifestly for the purpose of running the P. P. T. Co. and Captain Cochran & Co. off the trade. And

WHEREAS, Common sense, as well as past experience, has taught the people that such low rates cannot continue, and if the people suffer the O. S. N. Co. to run the P. P. T. Co. and Captain Cochran & Co. off the trade, we, the people, will be compelled to pay in the shape of exorbitant rates of freight all the losses the O. S. N. Co. may sustain by reason of their unreasonably reduced rates, with compound interest on the same.

We therefore in consideration of the foregoing facts invite our brother farmers, merchants, warehouse men, millers, and all who are interested in the prosperity and welfare of our common country, and the advancement of our industrial interests, to join us in securing a reasonable and uniform rate of freights.

Therefore Resolved, 1st.—That the Patrons of Husbandry of Spring Valley Grange No. 62 will patronize the P. P. T. Co. and Captain J. W. Cochran & Co's boats, so long as they will carry freights at fair and just rates, notwithstanding the O. S. N. Co. propose to carry for less.

2d.—That we will withdraw our patronage from merchants, warehouse men and millers who will not unite with us in securing such just and reasonable rates.

3d.—That a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions be furnished by the Secretary to the Willamette Farmer, Salem Mercury and OREGONIAN, for publication, with the request that other valley papers copy.

EOLA, March 12, 1877. T. PEARCE, Sec.

An exchange relates the following "gambling transaction": A young lady bet a young man a kiss that Tilden would be elected—he to pay if Tilden won, she to pay if Hayes was elected. On the morning of the 8th of November he called and paid the bet; on the 9th of November he called and took it back. That evening she paid the bet. Next morning she took it back, and he paid; then she paid and he paid, and so they have been kept busy by the contradictory dispatches ever since, both declaring their willingness and ability to hold out until Congress decided the question. Last Monday night she made the last payment, but hoped the matter would be thrown into court.

There are 289 Baptist churches in Massachusetts, with 47,315 members. There are 340 ordained ministers, of whom 239 are pastors of churches. Of the churches 208 are in the country and 81 in cities. During the last year there were 2,822 baptisms.

The Singer Manufacturing Co. report their sales for the year 1876 at 262,316 Machines, being an excess of 12,404 machines over their sales of 1875.

AMUSEMENTS.

MR. CARLTON'S BENEFIT.—This evening Mr. Theo. Carlton, the present lessee and manager of the New Market theater, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit, tendered by the Jubilee Singers. These singers were brought to Portland under the management of Mr. Carlton, to whom they feel indebted for many favors and courtesies. On this occasion a new and very entertaining programme will be presented. Mr. Carlton, the recipient of this testimonial, deserves the thanks of the public for having brought to Portland a company whose performances have given such universal satisfaction and pleasure during a brief sojourn in this city. Among the attractions to-night will be a solo by Mr Hunly, entitled "The Old Sexton." People who claim to know, say that Mr. Hunley, as a basso, has few superiors, and naturally enough there is a great desire to hear him in solo, and no selection could be more acceptable than the one just mentioned. The programme in part will be of a more lively character than heretofore yet the utmost care will be observed to make it acceptable to the most refined taste, as indeed have been all their entertainments here and elsewhere. Mr. Jackson has been the recipient of numerous requests and many of the songs asked for will be included in the programme. "Rocky my Soul," and "Gettin' up Mornin'," by John Henderson. "The Mocking Bird," by Lulu Henderson, with immitation by Hunly. "There's no Dying There," by Della Rayno, and favorite song by Miss Winston, Annie Henderson and the gentlemen comprising the company. In an interview with Mr. Carlton, that gentleman expressed himself well pleased with his first enterprise, and as he is one of Portland's citizens, having every interest here, his utmost desire is to provide our public with the very best class of amusements. All that is required is encouragement, and the people will have an opportunity to bestow it to-night. How gratified our citizens would be to learn that a first-class dramatic company is in store for them, or the wonderful troupe, 32 in number, which is playing "Eighty Days Around the World," at Baldwin's, San Francisco. M. Gray, of San Francisco, has promised Mr. Carlton the Thompson-Bracy opera troupe which was recently here, by next fall, with an addition of fifteen or twenty persons to render the operas complete. We simply hope and trust that Mr. Carlton will feel warranted in entering into such extensive enterprises. Give him a rouser!

THE COURTS.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT—DEADY, J.

MONDAY, March 12, 1877.

A. M. Gibbons vs P. J. Martin et al; demurrer to answer sustained and plaintiff has leave to amend his complaint by striking out the names of any of the defendants upon terms of $5 costs, and defendants have ten days after filing the same to plead thereto.

U. S. vs Eldridge Hartless; by consent the hearing on demurrer to amended answer is continued until to-morrow morning.

W. J. Sullivan vs Peter Bonin et al; on stipulation of the parties this cause is continued until next term.

U. S. vs Virgil S. Eggleston et al; finding of the court filed and entered, and on motion of U. S. district attorney judgment thereon for $2,413 45 for plaintiff.

U. S. vs Geo. H. Abbott et al; on motion of U. S. district attorney judgment upon the findings of the court for plaintiff, for the sum of $625 57 interest and cost.

U. S. vs Thomas G. Young; upon application the hearing on the demurrer to answer herein, is set for Tuesday next at 10 o'clock A. M.

Court adjourned until to-morrow at 10 o'clock A. M.

STATE CIRCUIT COURT—SHATTUCK, J.

State of Oregon vs Jean B. Guillimette and Mrs. Virginia Carentie; adultery; cause tried and submitted.

Jacob Zimmerman vs A. Delschneider et al; demurrer overruled and plaintiff allowed until Thursday next to file his reply.

COUNTY COURT—WOODWARD, J.—WOODWARD AND KELLY COMMISSIONERS.

LAW.

Wm. Sanders vs Ala. Corbett; judgment by default.

J. Sedlack vs M. Podang; judgment for defendant in accordance with the findings of the court.

PROBATE.

In the matter of the estate of Daniel McGillis, deceased; order taking the matter under advisement.

In the matter of the guardianship of Dora E. Hess, a minor; petition of guardian to sell real estate belonging to minor; order allowing the sale of real estate.

COMMISSIONERS.

In the matter of the Mitchell road; report of viewers read second time; there being no objections, no protest and no claim for damages, and the road appearing to be of general utility, was ordered located.

It appearing to the court that at the inquest held by Coroner Delin over the remains of T. D. Davis, a verdict was rendered to the effect that the said T. D. Davis came to his death at the hands of some person or persons unknown to the jurors, it is ordered that the sum of $500 be offered as a reward for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty party or parties.

AURORA AND VICINITY.

"Occasional" sends the following notes from this place:

The roads far and near are completely covered with water. However, they are not very muddy, nor in bad condition.

Mr. John B. Dimick's celebrated beaver dam garden spot is wearing an aqueous mantle, and just the tops of some of the posts in the fence are visible.

The water in Pudding river is higher at this date than it has been for four years. The saw and grist mills at this place are idle, owing to the high state of the water in Pudding river.

Last Friday, a young man by the name of Wm. Richey, employed by Mr. G. W. Dimick, was thrown from a horse, and as he fell, the horse stepped in his face, broke his upper jaw and bruised his face badly. He is getting along very finely, minus only four teeth.

At a late party given at Hubbard, a man by the name of Patterson "laid hands" on the rings of a martingal belonging to Mr. Delos Coffin. Delos invited him to "single," but he refused. Then Delos sought the protecting arm of the law, and Patterson was called to judgment, who found his purse minus forty dollars at the conclusion of the compromise.

Last Tuesday, Dr. Keil celebrated the sixty-fourth anniversary of his natal day, and a jolly time it was. During the day a concourse of people assembled to the number of about four hundred, and the time was passed very pleasantly. Speeches were made by several gentlemen, among whom we noticed the Hon. J. W. Grim. After nightfall a torchlight procession paraded the streets, and in the meantime the younger portion of the population began to spin in the mazy dance, which they continued to do until daylight. A free lunch greeted the assemblage all night. May Dr. Keil live to see many returns is the wish of your correspondent.

Two button French kid gloves for $1 at Mrs. Chas. Tichnor's.

Hickory nuts direct from Quincy, Illinois, to be had at S. L. Stone's.

Miss Parker is in San Francisco buying a large stock of Millinery for J. E. Brigham, No. 71 First street.

For good kid gauntlets at $1 a pair, go to the Emporium of Fashion.

Largest and most elaborately finished machine in the market; cheapest and best. J. B. Loomis, agent, 123 First street.

Just received a lot of feathers and flowers, to be sold cheap at Mrs. Chas. Tichnor's.

J. M. Birmingham having returned from San Franciscisco and the East, is now prepared at 150 First street, three doors below Salmon, to furnish parties in need of anything in upholstering line. None but clean, first class materials used, and work just as represented. He can and will do good work at moderate charges. Give him a trial.

Opera glasses at Friedlander's, with Gray's Music Store.

J. K. Gill & Co. have a large shipment of New Books, Stationery and Novelties on the incoming steamer—direct from New York.

Captains and pilots will note the fact that Peter Wilhelm has fitted up two rooms for their especial use at the Fountain, corner Ash and First streets. Number of English papers on file, including the London Daily Shipping and Mercantile Gazette.

CAPITAL NOTES.

Our correspondent at Salem sends the following under date of March 12th:

The weather is simply fearful, rain and wind predominating.

Mast. Fred Weatherford was the recipient of a surprise party last Saturday evening.

Mr. C. Parker had a horse stolen last evening, it is supposed by the escaped convicts.

Gus Wheeler, our popular telegraph operator, rejoices over the advent of a nine-pound boy.

The Salem Minstrels are rehearsing several new pieces for their second entertainment, about two weeks hence.

Rev. F. P. Tower, of the M. E. Church, preached a powerful sermon against theatrical amusements last evening.

The Tennessee Jubilee Singers are billed to appear here Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week at Reed's Opera House.

The notice of Hon. R. W. Wilson was, we are pleased to announce, rather premature, as he was still alive at last accounts, although lying very low with congestion of the liver and spine.

Two prisoners, Marshal and Sears, escaped from the penitentiary on Thursday last. Officer Minto, of this city, recaptured the former yesterday at a house of prostitution in this city, and officers are already on the track of the latter, with fair prospects of overhauling him.

There is considerable excitement in the city over a case in chambers, before Judge Boise, of this circuit, wherein Dr. Jas. A. Richardson appears as defendant. It seems that he was appointed visiting physician at the State penitentiary by Mr. Watkinds, previous to his resignation as superintendent of the same, the appointment to run two years longer, or as long as Watkinds' term would have lasted, had he not resigned. And now comes forward Mr. Burch, the new superintendent, who desires a change, and Dr. Richardson won't resign nor give up his office unless he is compelled to, and hence the suit.

NOTES FROM ALBANY.

Our occasional correspondent writing from the above point under date of March 12th, sends the following:

The rains have lulled.

The river very high at this place.

A man imprisoned last week for robbery.

Capt. Mathews makes a good night-watch.

The health of our city was never better than now.

Court commenced to-day, Judge Boise presiding.

A number of lawyers from a distance in our city to-day.

Court will not last over two weeks, as the docket is not large.

Mrs. L. Patton, of Portland, is now in our city visiting her friends.

The city will be crowded this week, which will be well for the hotels.

The sun made its appearance to day after a very stormy week that has past.

L. B Royal has been absent on a tour east of the mountains for a few weeks.

Rev. P. M. Starr's third quarterly meeting will be held in the M. E. Church next Sabbath.

A concert is being put on foot that will call out a large amount of first class musical talent.

We are told that among all the arrests made by our city officers from time to time, but few are boys or young men. This speaks well for a city of this size.

Capt. Jacob Miller, who has sojourned in this city for a few months, and has made himself very many friends, eaves for the East on the next steamer. We understand that he is to return soon and probably will make his home in this place.

One has only to look out upon the public buildings of this place in order to judge of the liberality of the people. Your correspondent thinks Albany stands first of all the cities in Oregon as to generous giving on the part of the citizens.

LEBANON ITEMS.

Our Lebanon correspondent sends us the following under date of March 10th:

Hazy weather, muddy streets and noisy hoodlums.

Recent rains have swollen the mountain streams, and loggers and mill men are happy.

Diphtheria is on the wane and fevers are the order of the day. Several cases in the town and vicinity.

Your correspondent learns that James V. Taylor, who is supplying Conn & Co's mill on the Santiam river, lost about 200,000 feet of logs by the breaking of a boom during the last freshet.

Our efficient county assessor, Mr. P. M. Smith, is in town with his book and pencil, and the average tax payer is casting up his accounts and striking a balance to ascertain what I O U and U O I, in order to satisfy that inquisitive individual.

Settlemire & Dawson have made a success of running logs on Hamilton creek. There have been delivered at their new steam mill within the past few days about a half million feet of the finest mountain logs. They expect to cut about 1½ million feet of lumber the present season.

Quite a number of buildings are in contemplation of erection in our town the coming summer, and among the number we would suggest one about 10x12 feet, built of sawed timber about eight inches square, with floor and ceiling of the same material, with small window with iron bars.

One night last week a small stone perforated one of the large glass in the Odd Fellows' hall, and immediately hasty steps were heard retreating down the sidewalk. It may be fun for the boys to exercise their muscle in throwing stones at a $3 window glass, but it is rather rough on the owners.

R. McCalley, who has been so frequently seen on our streets since he retired from business, will soon occupy the Odd Fellows' building with a large and complete stock of general merchandise. Mr. McCalley will have one of the most commodious and elegantly finished store rooms in the country.

To be beautiful, graceful, healthful and comfortable, wear Dr. Warner's corset. Third street near Morrison.

See the New White Shuttle Machine, the greatest invention of the country. Office, 123 First street.

Afternoon school at Progress Hall for children. All those holding card of invitation to the Sorees will be admitted. Good music.

It is easy enough to rectify whisky, but difficult to rectify the errors which poor whisky causes. Amend the error of your ways by drinking only Noble Whisky, sold by Millard & VanSchuyver, 39 Front street.

The Singer Manufacturing Co. report their sales for the year 1876 at 262,316 Machines, being an excess of 12,464 machines over their sales of 1875.

Every prospect of rain, and yet Fabre pursues his course as caterer.

Masquerade suits and trimmings, at J. Harris & Son's.

DECISION IN THE U. S. CIRCUIT COURT BY JUDGE DEADY.

U. S. Circuit Court—District of Oregon.

MONDAY, MARCH 12, 1877.

B. M. Gibbons v P. J. Martin et al, action to recover possession of real property.

Joinder of causes of action. Under the Or. Civ. Code (§ 91) a plaintiff in an action to recover the possession of a particular tract of land is not entitled to join parties as defendants who occupy in severalty distinct parcels of said tract; and if he does so join them, and the fact does not appear upon the face of the complaint, the defendants may plead it in abatement of the action.

(2.) Same subject. The rule in such cases at common law.

(3.) Where defendants were trespassers. Semble, if the defendants are mere trespassers or squatters, without color of right or definite claims to distinct parcels or established and visible boundaries, they may be joined in one action.

DEADY, J.

This action is brought by the plaintiff as a citizen of Illinois against the defendants as citizens of Oregon, to recover the possession of donation claims numbered 38 and 58, containing 578.60 acres, situate in the county of Columbia, State of Oregon.

The complaint alleges that the plaintiff is the owner in fee simple of the premises, and entitled to the possession of them; and "that the defendants wrongfully and unlawfully withhold the possession of the same from the plaintiff to his damage $200."

The defendants answering the complaint jointly, plead in abatement of the action that the defendants "derive their respective titles from different sources, and have no joint or common occupancy or possession of any part of the premises;" that the defendant, Miles, occupies a "distinct parcel" of the premises—describing it—in severalty, and the defendants, Martin and Cornelius, the residue thereof jointly.

The plaintiff demurs to the answer as being insufficient "to constitute a defence."

No authorities were cited by counsel upon the argument of the demurrer, the defendants relying upon the provisions of the Or. Civ. Code, hereafter specified.

At common law,—in the case of an ejectment for premises of which distinct parcels were in the several occupation of different persons, no direct objection could be made to the misjoinder, as by a plea in abatement, but the parties were entitled upon application to the court, to enter into the consent rule and plead separately. See In re Girard, 3 Wall., Jr., C. C. In such case the parties were entitled to separate trials, and practically there were as many actions as defendants. Potter v. Scoville, 5 Wend. 96; Burkhart v. Roy, 2 Yeates, 272. But even when the parties entered into the consent rule and plead jointly it appears that evidence might be given on the trial to show that the defendants occupied distinct parcels, and in such case, if the plaintiff was otherwise entitled to recover, there was a verdict and judgment against the defendants severally, for the parcels occupied by them respectively.

Yet in Jackson v. Hazen, et al., 2 John. 441, it was held that the plaintiff could not recover in such a case against the defendants occupying in severalty, because the issue was upon the allegation that the defendants jointly withheld from the plaintiff the possession of the whole premises. But in Jackson v. Wood et al., 5 John. 194, it was held, in the same court, that where five defendants occupied separate parts of the premises in severalty, but entered into the consent rule and pleaded not guilty, jointly, and the jury found against each defendant as to the parcel occupied by him, that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment against each defendant according to the verdict. See, also, to the same effect, Bayard v. Colefax et al., 4 W. C. C. 38; Camden et al. v. Haskell, 3 Rand. 462; White v. Pickering, 12 S. & R. 435.

Practically, the only plea allowed in ejectment was the general issue—not guilty—and this the party in possession was not entitled to make until he appeared and entered into the consent rule agreeing to confess on the trial the lease, entry and ouster as alleged in the declaration.

The plea in abatement, except to the jurisdiction of the court, was not allowed (Adams, 270), and the only mode of objecting to the misjoinder of causes of action, as where different persons occupying distinct parcels of the premises were sued jointly, as joint occupants withholding the possession of the whole of such premises, was, as has been said, to apply to the court for leave to enter into the consent rule and plead separately as to so much of the premises occupied by each, and then demand a separate trial.

In Greer v. Mezes et al., 24 How. 268, the action was brought against a number of persons jointly for the possession of the tract of land called Las Pulgas. The defendants pleaded the general issue, but no one of them defended for any particular part of the premises. The jury, under the instructions of the court, found separate verdicts against such of the defendants as appeared to be in the possession of distinct parcels of the premises and a general verdict against the rest. This instruction was affirmed by the Supreme Court. In commenting upon it Mr. Justice Greer said, "In the action of ejectment, a plaintiff will not be allowed to join in one suit several and distinct parcels, tenements or tracts of land, in possession of several defendants, each claiming for himself. But he is not bound to bring a separate action against several trespassers, on his single, separate and distinct tenement or parcel of land. As to him they are trespassers, and he cannot know how they claim, whether jointly or severally; or if severally, how much each one claims; nor is it necessary to make such proof in order to support his action. Each defendant has a right to take defense specially for such portion of the land as he claims and by doing so he necessarily disclaims any title to the residue of the land described in the declaration; and if on the trial he succeeds in establishing his title to so much of it as he has taken defense for, and in showing that he was not in possession of any of the remainder disclaimed, he will be entitled to a verdict. He may also demand a separate trial, and that his case be not complicated or impeded by the issues made with others, or himself made liable for costs unconnected with his separate litigation."

Practically this exposition of the rule allows the plaintiff in ejectment to unite causes of action which do not affect all the parties to the action, with a right in any defendant who claims only a portion of the premises to make defense therefor and demand a separate trial.

But it appears that the Code has done away with this anomaly, and permits defendants who are improperly united in an action to recover the possession of real property to plead that fact, when it does not appear upon the face of the complaint, in abatement of the action.

Section 91 of the Civ. Code provides that the plaintiff may unite several causes of action in the same complaint, when they all arise out of * * * claims to recover real property with or without damages for the withholding thereof; * * * but the cause of action so united * * * must affect all the parties to the action * * *."

From the answer, which is admitted by the demurrer, it appears that the defendants are not tenants in common of the premises, but that Miles occupies a distinct portion of them in severalty and Martin and Cornelius the remainder in common. There is then no joint occupation or withholding of the premises sued for by the defendant. The alleged wrong upon the right of the defendant is several—being committed by Miles as to one particular tract and Martin and Cornelius as to the remainder. The fact, that these tracts are contiguous, or that they are both owned by the plaintiff as a single close or body of land, does not of itself make the injury or withholding by the defendants a joint one and coextensive with the whole premises for which they may be joined as defendants.

Upon this view of the matter, it appears from the answer that there are two causes of action united in this complaint, neither of which affect all the parties to the action. It is therefore contrary to the statute and a plain case of misjoinder of causes of action.

Section 66 of the Civ. Code authorizes a demurrer to a complaint when it appears upon its face that "several causes of action have been improperly united" therein; and by § 69 thereof, if such misjoinder does not appear upon the face of the complaint, "the objection may be taken by answer."

This seems to be conclusive of the question raised by the demurrer.

The only case arising under the modern code pleadings and bearing upon this question, to which my attention has been attracted, is Fosgate v. The A. M. & H. Co., 12 N. Y. 580. In that case several persons were joined as defendants in an action to recover the possession of a small parcel of land with a dwelling house thereon. The answer was joint and denied the withholding of the premises as alleged and set up ownership in one of the defendants. On the trial, it was proved, subject to objections, that the defendants occupied distinct parcels of the premises. It was ruled and affirmed on appeal that the evidence was immaterial and irrelevant to the issue, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover against all the defendants jointly. Referring to the provisions of the New York code, similar to those above cited from the Or. Code, the court says—"If the complaint shows a misjoinder of defendants a demurrer is the appropriate remedy. If the defect does not appear upon the face of the complaint, the defendants must set it up in their answer. And if no such objections be taken either by demurrer or answer, the defendant shall be deemed to have waived the same. These provisions of the code were intended to meet cases like the present."

True, the only point directly ruled in this case, is that an objection, that defendants jointly sued in ejectment hold distinct parcels of the premises in severalty must, if the fact does not appear upon the face of the complaint, be made by answer or otherwise it will be disregarded; and, Marvin J. closes a concurring opinion with the remark—"The question is not presented in this case whether the owner of land, entitled to its possession, can maintain an action against two or more persons who occupy distinct parcels of it, claiming under the same right." But the reasonable implication from the opinion of the court is, that it regarded the objection to the action as a valid one if it had not been waived, and that the provisions of the Code cited in the opinion were intended to enable defendants improperly joined in an action of ejectment to plead that fact in abatement of the same.

Upon the whole I think the plea is good and the defendants must have judgment unless the plaintiff elects to amend his complaint by striking out the defendant Miles or the defendants and co-tenants Martin and Cornelius, and proceed against the other.

But it must not be understood that what is here said applies to a case where a number of apparent trespassers or mere squatters go upon and occupy a particular tenement or tract of land without color of right, or definite claims to distinct parcels or established and visible boundaries. In such cases as was said in Greer v. Mezes et al., as to the plaintiff the occupants are all trespassers, and he cannot know how they claim or to what extent.

Walter W. Thayer and William H. Effinger for the defendants.

A REJOINDER.

PORTLAND, March 12, 1877.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Please permit me through the columns of your paper to briefly reply to a card in yesterday's issue of your journal relative to my article of the 7th, signed "Colored Voter." Mr. Mason attempts to defend himself by saying the language he made use of on the night in question was borrowed from the Democratic vocabulary. Was it Democratic language when he asserted that in the years of 1856-7-9 the "darkey" would not have brought a tenth part of the amount it realized on the auction block in Louisiana, (speaking of the $100,000 bribe)? No, no, Mr. Mason, we may be stupid, if you like, but we apprehend the animus that actuates such invidious distinctions when speaking of us, and it is neither more nor less than an opinion by a certain class of our inferiority. To persons having political aspirations, such discourteous language is made use of ad captandum vulgus; but by the refined, intelligent masses it is greatly disapproved of. We are opposed, in attending public meetings, to hearing our women designated "wenches" and ourselves "niggers." Born and reared on the soil of America, willing, when necessary, to stand up in her defense, we deprecate any distinction of citizens up on account of color.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your courtesy in permitting me the use of your columns, I hereby dismiss the subject.

The Cheyenne Sun says a company has been formed in Cheyenne with fifty thousand dollars capital for the purpose of putting up smelting works in the Bear Butte silver district, near Deadwood City.

The same paper says the biggest clean-up of the season was made this week from the justly celebrated Father De Smet lode, resulting being seventy pounds of gold. Sixteen thousand eight hundred dollars is a nice little sum to put away from six days' work.

The Pioneer, Deadwood, Black Hills, of February 17th, says: Very rich placer discoveries have been made within the past two weeks at Bear Gulch. Prospects ranging from two to five dollars to the pan have been obtained. The hardy prospectors are jubilant.

There is a man confined in our jail, says the Elko Independent, serving out a sentence of ninety days for misdemeanor. His sentence was $300 or 90 days in jail. Some of his friends raised the amount of his fine and sent it to the sheriff with instructions to take his note for the money, pay his fine and let him out; but he concluded that he could make $300 easier by remaining in jail than any other way, so he refused to be released in that way, and the money was returned to the parties who sent it.

The Jacksonville Times says: A. Miller, Jr., one of our county commissioners, recently discovered, about one mile from his place on Antelope, a deposit of mud similar to the silver mud found in Wasco county. Miller has received from a son in the Ochoco valley a full description of the Camp creek region and the ore coming from it, and on comparison finds his mud to nearly correspond. It is finer and contains more crystals than the Wasco specimen, and has also a more astringent taste.

TERRIBLE DISASTER IN LONDON.

[London Times of Jan. 21.]

Yesterday morning, about 10:15, a terrible disaster happened on the premises of the City Commissioners of Sewers, in Commercial road, Lambeth, resulting in the death of one person, mortal injury to two women, and serious injuries to a dozen others. For some time past Lett's wharf has been the scene of extensive building operations, the Commissioners erecting a large series of buildings for the sorting and storage of the dust and refuse collected in the city of London proper, together with suitable furnaces for burning up such vegetable and animal refuse as is useless for manure. The main building was completed, and the shaft of the furnace was still in course of erection, with scaffolding around and above it. At the time mentioned a great number of dust sorters, men and women, were at work in a yard adjoining the new works, when suddenly the rain came down with such violence that they flocked under the scaffolding for shelter, and at that very moment the whole of the shaft and timber surrounding it was blown over by a fierce rush of wind, and came crashing down upon the unfortunate people. Their shrieks for help brought assistance from adjoining wharves, and in the space of half an hour the whole of the poor people were rescued and taken to the hospital, [illegible] of them being to all appearance dead, but it was subsequently ascertained that only one had been killed outright, although two more of them are so much injured in the spine that their recovery is impossible. The city surveyor for the southern district and the surveyor for the parish of Lambeth were soon on the spot, and it became apparent that the shaft had become strained by the gale of Monday night, and that the momentary hurricane which swept over the metropolis at 10:15 had snapped one of the standards and hurled the whole shaft to the ground.

Mrs. Mary Clemmer went into the Supreme Court room the other day while the Electoral Commission was in session, and this is what she says she saw: "On a raised dais, in a straight row, sit the Justices. Directly before them, this [illegible] stood Evarts—slender, delicate, [illegible], emitting a steady stream of long-involved, splendid sentences. The Justices sat intent gazing on this intellectual wonder. Field took a calm, contemplative view through his large glasses. Bradley dozed on either side of his very [illegible] nose, and neither eye could tell any [illegible] the other. Justice Clifford [illegible] in [illegible], big as Jove, but too lazy to launch a thunderbolt. Justice Strong, with a white head, sharp features, and foxy eyes, was fussing about in his chair, as if the argument were a bore. Justice Miller leaned back, the image of serenity, placid as a May morning. Then there was Edmunds, looking like a Jewish lawgiver, and Frelinghuysen, meditating on his grandfather; and Morton, who has the most inconsequent nose ever set as a [illegible] to so grand a head. It is like a [illegible] with a barn-door entrance. At the end sat Bayard, whose fine, strong head [illegible] his grandfather; and next him, Thurman, muffled to the [illegible] in a cashmere scarf, worn with [illegible], and looking as if he had the [illegible]. At the opposite end sat Henry B. Payne of Ohio a classical-looking gentleman; and Josiah G. Abbott of Boston, who looks like Hawthorne; and James A. Garfield, whose head and face certainly do not lack strength of outline, whatever else they lack; and George F. Hoar of Massachusetts, trim, clean-cut, and [illegible]; and Eppa Hunton of Virginia, with [illegible] unilluminating eyes, and a [illegible] head."

FALL OF MIDHAT PASHA.

The London correspondent of the New York Tribune, under date of Feb. 7th, says:

Yesterday morning brought us a genuine surprise—the news of the dismissal of Midhat Pasha the day before. All the leading morning papers had special dispatches announcing [illegible] but they were of the briefest, and the reasons assigned by the different correspondents were various and apparently contradictory. Nor do we know to say positively anything but the barest facts. There are, indeed, plenty of accounts; and explanations of Midhat's fall are by no means lacking. The difficulty is there are too many of them, and any one of the theories advanced so confidently is plausible enough. There may [illegible] who would content themselves with the official declaration that Midhat's [illegible] and exile were rendered necessary by [illegible] reasons. It is the irony of fortune by which Midhat, who so often pleaded [illegible] as a bar to the proposals [illegible] should see that same instrument [illegible] for his removal, [illegible] to plague [illegible]. He has been banished from [illegible] empire, in accordance with article [illegible] of the constitution, which gives to the Sultan the right to exile those who, according [illegible] information of the police, endanger the security of the State. It is true that the [illegible] immemorial has [illegible] the right, always excepting the [illegible] been exercised on him, [illegible] absolute now as ever.

[illegible] of the Soudan, Egypt's new province in Central Africa—Major Prout, a young American. [illegible] of [illegible] but without friends, he managed, after a hard struggle, to give himself a thorough education, and was graduated in 1869 or 1870 from the University of Michigan as a civil engineer. He afterward settled in Chicago, [illegible] of the great fire was engaged [illegible] work at landscape gardening at the suburb of Riverside. After the fire he went to Europe and offered his services to the Khedive of Egypt, engaging first in teaching engineering to the young officers of the Egyptian army. When Col. Gordon (now Governor-general of the Soudan) and Lieut. Col. Long started, in 1874, on their exploring expedition to the Soudan and the lake region of Central Africa, Major Prout accompanied them as the commander of one of the divisions of the expedition. He suffered great hardships, and has now gained the reward merited by his pluck and energy.

The confession of Eph Holland relative to the Democratic frauds in Cincinnati accounts directly for over 500 fraudulent votes, enough to oust Banning and nearly every Democrat in office in the county. He testifies that he was engaged as a matter of business by Banning, Wallace and other Democratic leaders to get votes by whatever means necessary, and he got them. Thousands of dollars were furnished him, and he disbursed the money among repeaters from New York, Chicago and Pittsburg. His confession has made a startling sensation in Cincinnati. There is much disappointment expressed because Holland refuses to give the names of the Democrats in the East who furnished the money.

The new court house being built at Union is about completed, and the Sentinel allows that the people of Union county have reason to congratulate themselves on having one of the best and altogether the cheapest court house in the State.

Local financial and trade matters are very quiet at this time, and bankers as well as merchants find ample time to make all necessary preparations for the more active condition of business expected to prevail with the full opening of spring trade. The supply of funds is quite adequate to the current demand for legitimate purposes, while there is but a light call for speculative enterprises. The outlook for business seems to be fair, and while there are some features that are not altogether encouraging, the ease likely to prevail in monetary affairs and the probability of abundant crops of the various agricultural products, furnish good reason to hope for an active and prosperous season in the various departments of business.

Not only on this coast are the signs of the times fraught with much that is hopeful, but also east of the Rocky Mountains, in the principal trade centers, the same spirit of cheerfulness in the outlook is noticed. During the week ending February 17, says the Journal of Commerce, the aggregate of deposits, discounts, loans, etc., reported by the Chicago clearing house was $18,062,467 against $18,407,770 for the corresponding week in 1876, a falling off of $674,691. As the opinion has become general that the reports of the chief bank clearing houses in any city, district or country are the most reliable exponents of the business status of that city, district or county, these figures would indicate a decrease of trade in that city, but the same paper gives a statement which puts a better phase on the general aspect of the business of the country at large. From this statement we find that the aggregate clearing house reports of the cities of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Louisville and Pittsburg for the week ending Feb. 10th, foot up thus:

Clearings of these ten cities	$584,398,776
Corresponding week of 1876	564,601,162
Increase of business for one week	$19,767,614

There was an increase in banking business of New York, Boston, New Orleans, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Louisville and Pittsburg, and a falling off in Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis as compared with the same season of 1876, but yet an aggregate gain East, South and West of near twenty millions.

Taking these ten cities together the deduction is that by so much are the indications of a preparation or general revival of business increased. This is the view of business men, and while the anticipated change has hardly yet begun, the expectation that it will come is none the less strong. A leading commercial journal predicting this better condition in business matters says wisely:

Our ardent wishes may be the parents of the thought, and we, therefore, advise business men of every class to move cautiously. Have every kind of business well in hand and know certainly at the conclusion of every week what have been receipts and expenditures and what reliable assets and certain liabilities, and such caution, discipline and watchfulness will, in the future, be much added to their stock in trade.

General Merchandise.

An inspection of the leading business houses in this city will convince one of the faith which merchants here have in at least an average volume of business during the spring season. Although stocks of seasonable goods are by no means yet filled in all cases, yet the preparations for the trade are on such a scale as is never witnessed when times are hard and the outlook void of encouragement. Most houses are already in receipt of large quantities of goods, and additional quantities suited to the trade will arrive by each steamer and sail vessel arriving from San Francisco, so that by the close of the current year the stocks of merchandise here will be more extensive and varied than during average years in the past. In the department of imported goods, the variety is too great to admit of details as to quotations, but the general tendency of the market is downward except in a few staple articles, prominent among which are boots and shoes and some lines of groceries. In the department of dry goods prices are likely to rule even lower than last spring, there being an evident intention to clear out all old stocks which the overproduction during a few years past, left large quantities above the consumptive demand. The merchants of this coast and of Portland in fact, have bought largely in the East of late, and under the pressure of the dull state of trade there, were able to secure stocks on very favorable terms. And the interior trade will find no necessity to go further than Portland to find ample opportunities of procuring every article needed in supplying the business wants of the country. In fact, but few cities in the Union have more complete mercantile arrangements than this. Merchants understand the wants of the country and spare no effort to meet them fully.

Domestic Produce.

In this department of trade there is very little upon which to comment. To-day the receipts have been unusually light, and shippers are apparently but slightly anxious to increase them, as few articles now sent abroad leave any considerable margin for any one between the producer and the consumer. Freights are moderate, and still exporters complain that their business is unremunerative. This however, is perhaps attributable rather to the limited movement than to the difference between the markets of purchase and sale. The leading commodity of wheat is moving very slowly at present, and it is evident that the surplus, accessible at this season, is well nigh exhausted. From this valley the receipts of the past few days are nearly insignificant. The rise in the river will enable the boats to reach some considerable lots east of the mountains very soon, which being brought out will leave but little else to be done in this line until harvest comes again. Prices for all classes of domestic products remain about as at our former quotations.

English Grain Market.

LONDON, March 12—The Mark Lane Express says: The supply of English wheat at Mark Lane continues small, and most samples have been in inferior condition. Prices have therefore been irregular and slightly lower for all but finest lots. Imports into London have again been very light of foreign wheat; no fresh arrivals of California having been reported, and the return is chiefly remarkable for the significant quality of wheat from Atlantic ports. Germany has been exporting wheat to the United Kingdom, but with the continental demand springing up, it is unlikely that her import will be sensibly increased by shipments from this source, especially as last year's harvest on the continent was generally difficult. Importations of East India wheat continues steadily, sales made without difficulty, as this class of grain has not lost ground in the opinion of millers. Operations have been chiefly retail and although quietude prevailed, prices were but little altered. Russian wheat has been in fair request some transactions for spring shipment from St Petersburg have been effected for the Continent; some quantity of inferior American wheat has recently been taken off our market also for Continental account. Politics cease to exercise appreciable effect upon our own principal European markets. There have been numerous arrivals of California cargoes into various parts of the United Kingdom, principally comprising heavy shipments made from San Francisco in October. As we anticipated they have been readily absorbed, Liverpool taking the lion's share, and the Continent a few, and it is worthy of note that this increase in supply has been attended by a healthy trade, and improving in Liverpool on passage, and this will probably excite inquiry as to sources from which our requirements later on are to be made up.

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship Ajax will be due from San Francisco to-morrow.

The steamship City of Chester, designed for the trade between this port and San Francisco, is about due at the latter port.

The barkentine Portland is discharging a cargo of assorted merchandise at Flanders' wharf.

The British bark Alumina has about finished loading. She is the last grain vessel in port.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

LANDS FOR SALE

The Society has the following REAL ESTATE in its hands for Sale:

322 Acres

In Yamhill county, 18 miles from McMinnville; 150 acres under cultivation and 173 acres of good pasturage. The farm has good running water and excellent springs, also timber enough for practical purposes, a rolling surface and good drainage. There are good neighbors in the vicinity.

Price $20 per acre. Terms one-half cash, balance on long credit at low interest.

[illegible] Acres

In Washington county, 120 acres of Beaver dam land, with no timber or brush on it; about 40 acres of heavy timber, balance open hazel brush land. There is a good Barn and Log house on the place, also a fine young orchard, and 16 acres of Timothy meadow. The land is nearly all under fence and it can easily be made one of the finest farms in Oregon. Price $5,250.

[illegible] Acres

On the Columbia bottom, 20 miles north of Portland, 2½ miles from landing place of daily steamers on the Columbia river. Lake river, a navigable stream, crosses the place. It is one of the best dairy farms in the country. Two hundred and sixty acres of this tract is good pasture and meadow land, and will be sold separately or with part or all of the balance, which is timber.

Price for the meadow and pasture, $15 per acre; for the timber, $7 00 per acre. Price for the whole tract, $6,500. Terms—Two-thirds cash, balance on time. Good buildings on the place.
